Last weekend, a unique Christmas Market in Zawiercie transported residents into the magical atmosphere of the holiday season. This event, full of attractions and festive spirit, was not only an opportunity to enjoy the charm of this special time but also a platform for discussions about ecology and environmental protection.

The market attracted residents of Zawiercie and the surrounding areas with its diverse stalls offering unique handicrafts, Christmas decorations, and local delicacies. The air was filled with the aroma of fresh pastries, mulled wine, and festive spices, creating an unforgettable atmosphere.

During the market, Andrzej Gwóźdź, our eco-manager from Zawiercie, had a remarkable opportunity to talk with residents about the impact of air quality on health. Particular emphasis was placed on the importance of avoiding outdoor activities on days when pollution levels exceed safe limits.

Meetings with the eco-manager also provided an excellent chance to learn about available funding programs for replacing non-eco-friendly heating systems. These conversations marked another step toward raising awareness of the necessity of caring for the environment.

There was no shortage of joy for children either! A meeting with Santa Claus, performances by young artists, and gifts from the eco-manager delighted the youngest attendees. The smiles on their faces were the best proof of how important such initiatives are in fostering the holiday spirit.

The Zawiercie Christmas Market was not only an occasion to experience joy and the magic of Christmas but also an opportunity to reflect on our impact on the environment. Thanks to the eco-manager's efforts, the residents of Zawiercie could learn how their daily choices affect the quality of the air we all breathe.

This exceptional event will remain in our memory for a long time, filling us with a joyful holiday spirit. Together, we can ensure that the holiday season is not only beautiful but also eco-friendly!
