Slavic Midsummer Night in the Spirit of Ecology

When: 21 June 2025, 18:00 - 20:00

Where: ul. Karpacka 86, Rychwałdek

Who: Alicja Kołtunowicz, eco-manager of the Association of Communes for Ecology in Żywiec

The Slavic Midsummer Night in the Spirit of Ecology is a unique celebration where ancient traditions meet modern ecological awareness. Organized by the Women's Rural Association in Rychwałdek in collaboration with an eco-manager from the "Silesia. Blue Sky Restored" project, this event highlights the connection between sustainable living and cultural heritage.

This night will be filled with customs that have been passed down through generations, combined with innovative solutions to help participants understand how circular economy, recycling, and air protection can become a natural part of everyday life—even when organizing community festivals. Ecology at a Midsummer Celebration

During the event, a special eco-education zone will be available, where attendees can learn how to organize zero waste celebrations. Practical tips on reducing waste, eliminating plastic, and making conscious consumer choices will show that traditional festivities can align with environmental responsibility.

For the youngest participants, there will be an eco-quiz that introduces them to the principles of recycling, resource conservation, and air quality impact on health in an engaging way. Each child participating in the quiz will receive eco-friendly gifts from the "Silesia. Blue Sky Restored" project.

Adults will have the opportunity to speak with the eco-manager, who will explain the practical implementation of the anti-smog resolution, the consequences of burning waste, and sustainable solutions to improve air quality in the region.
